ALEX LABBE READY FOR A STRONG RETURN IN BOWMANVILLE

Bowmanville (Ontario, Canada) August 30, 2017 – The NASCAR Pinty's 2017 series is coming soon to end with fewer than three races left before crowning the next NASCAR Pinty's champion's of 2017. Sitting at the top of the standings with results that talk for themselves, Alex Labbé is preparing with confidence for the Total Quartz 200 at the Canadian Tire Motorsport Park on Sunday, September 3 at 11h a.m. where he will be at the wheel of the No. 32 Ford Can-Am/Kappa for one last time on a road course track this year.

Road courses trial results are showing that the No. 32 Ford Can-Am/Kappa is competitive. All of the collected Top-5 are satisfying but the team is still looking for the speed that allowed Labbé to clinch the pole position in 2016. The various adjustments applied on the road course program in the last month were remarkable in Trois-Rivières, but insufficient to lead the race. Fortunately, "We really think we have found the problem," explains Alex Labbé. "We focused on straight lines because that's where we lacked power to strive. CTMP is really interesting track because if you accumulate a good momentum, you can carry very fast speeds. If I find myself in a position to win the race, people can expect me to try my best to get our first win on a road course, but I would not risk my chances to earn a championship title for it. ”

Well Positioned, But Nothing Is Earned Yet

The team supported by BRP (recreational products from Bombardier) cannot deny its happiness to be sitting in the leading seat at this stage of the season. Although nothing is earned yet and the team is aware that when it comes to motor racing, everything can happen. Labbé added: “The most important thing for us this year is to be consistent and rational. We are very proud of everything we have accomplished so far and we remain focused on our goal of winning the championship. We must remain competitive and intelligent. ”
